piXlogic Expands Presence in Government Marketplace Government Technology Provider Carahsoft Technology Corporation to Support Growth Efforts into Government Agencies

January 10, 2005 - Los Altos, California – piXlogic, the leading supplier of advanced visual search software solutions has entered into a strategic agreement to increase piXlogic presence in the government marketplace with Carahsoft Technology Corp., a government focused information technology provider.

piXlogic has developed and markets a highly advanced visual search engine that automatically analyzes, indexes, and searches the contents of images and video files, and does so with high levels of accuracy and speed. piXlogic's advanced search software solutions are key to organizations and users that want to navigate and manage large repositories of pictures and video files.

"Our solution is perfectly suited to the needs of so many government agencies that have digital media archiving and search requirements that are often beyond what we see in the commercial marketplace," said Joseph Santucci, founder, president and CEO of piXlogic. "Teaming with Carahsoft will make it that much easier for the government user to receive the implementation and systems integration services that are critical to the piXlogic solution."

Under this agreement, Carahsoft will provide sales, marketing, and integration expertise to piXlogic for Government customers. Featured in this agreement is piXserve, a highly scalable client/server application that automatically creates a searchable index of the visual contents of media files.

"We believe we can leverage our deep understanding of government requirements, needs, and the procurement environment to create new opportunities for piXlogic," said Craig P. Abod, president of Carahsoft. "We are committed to putting the sales and marketing tools together to make this a successful venture. The advanced technology that piXlogic has created will provide a fast and accurate way for government agencies to index media files, saving both time and money."
